MONDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 12.

THE PRESIDENT.-We have it upon good authority that the best-informed man in the United States upon Cuban affairs and American schemes for their improvement is one Millard Fillmore. His minute knowledge of the men and the means relied upon in the recently contemplated demonstration has astonished some who would have given him the benefit of their counsels in the matter. President Fillmore is never in a hurry about any thing, and one of the reasons is that he is generally about half through any given task when other people begin to think of looking after it. He is one of the coolest, calmest, and most clear-minded and industrious men who have ever labored in the service of the American people or any portion of them. It is seldom that all the elevated attributes of the statesman and the aptness for supervising details have been so harmoniously blended in the same individual. When we add to these things that his benevolent politeness never forsakes him, and that no one who ventures to approach him is ever repelled by either a word or a frown, we have drawn a truthful picture of him as he is daily seen by hundreds of our fellow-citizens and the strangers who come amongst us. This of the President-we do not know the politician.

"Norning New!"-We are told that, at a recent sitting of the Paris Academy of Sciences, M. Morin read a paper to prove that the invention of the steam locomotive belongs to France, being due to an engineer named Cugnot. His locomotive was constructed in 1770, and deposited at the Conservatory in 1801. The French papers are also publishing an extract from the 'Travels in France" of Arthur Young, in 1787, to prove that the original invention of the electric telegraph belongs to France. It is said that one M. Lemond, an ingenious French mechanic, had then an electric telegraph in operation between distant apartments of his

We are looking for aerial navigation as an important improvement of the times: but simply for the facilities it will afford us, as we shall not be able to deny the antiquity of the discovery in the face of the authorities that will be brought up to prove it. Paine's light, we doubt not, was in general use in the dark ages, and Page's locomotive is but a counterpart of Pharaoh's chariot, which will be found away down in the Red Sea, just in time to detect and expose the Professor's imposture.

What arrant humbugs the Yankees are, to be sure! They even prate of liberty, a thing that has existence nowhere but under the protection of monarchies, aristocracies, hierarchies, and suchlike benevolent institutions.

THE DEPARTURE. - The President of the United States, accompanied by the Secretary of State, the Secretary of the Navy, the Postmaster General, and the Attorney General, left Washington this morning at six o'clock, en route for New York, to attend the celebration of the completion of the Erie Railroad from the Atlantic ocean to Lake Erie. The President's lady, daughter and son formed part of the agreeable company. They went off in fine spirits, and under a pleasant sky.

THE NEXT PRESIDENCY .- The Whigs of York county, Va., have nominated Daniel Webster for the Presidency.

General Scott has been nominated by many Whig meetings in different parts of the country; but we notice in an article from the Fredericksburg Herald, which we find in the Republic of this morning, that it is disapproved by the former journal, the editor of which says that the General is not his first choice, and that men should be left out of view and the Presidentia contest deferred until the friends of the Union, of all parties, shall have fully triumphed over the spirit of disunion, secession, and every Saloon. species of fanaticism

We read much in the English journals about conversions from and to the Roman Catholic church, but great personages only are named. is your humble soul, without a motive of policy, who should be most deferentially regarded. Velvet-covered volumes, with gold clasps, are by no means the best in which to read one's prayers, nor are your great carriage folks always the best at praying.

PROF. HENRY was announced at Cincinnati, on the 8th instant, to deliver an address on the objects of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, before the Mechanics Institute.

MAY HIS NAME BE HONORED !- The Augusta (Va.) Democrat states that the late James B. Hill, of Staunton, left by will all his property (some five or six thousand dollars) to be applied to the education of poor children in Staunton.

FLOGGING THE JUVENILES .- At the meeting of the Teachers' Association, on Saturday, Mr. Richards was appointed President pro tem., and a very spirited discussion took place on the question of entirely abolishing corporeal punishment in schools. The affirmative was defended by Messrs. Johnson and Woodbury, and the fortunes, with undeviating fidelity, for so many negative by Messrs. Eva, Keech, and Wight. We are glad to find that there is an increasing interest manifested in the meetings of this society. The same question is to be further discussed at the next meeting.

APPOINTMENT .- Mr. W. C. Lipscomb, jr., has been appointed a clerk in the Bureau of Ordnance in the Navy Department, from the 16th proximo, in place of Israel Robinson, resigned.

The Rev. W. S. PLUMBER, D.D., of Baltimore, was announced in the Post-Boy to preach in the court-house at Maysville, Ky., on Wednesday

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT OF GEORGETOWN COL-LEGS .- At half-past four o'clock this afternoon the opening address of this institution will be be the duty of all, upon the turn of the tide delivered at the Smithsonian Institution by the Rev. Dr. RYDER.

MISSIONARIES .- We learn that the ship Equator, Capt. Ewer, was to sail on Saturday from Boston for Bombay. She takes as passengers

ENLARGEMENT OF THE CAPITOL .- We can state that the precise plan for the enlargement of the Capitol (which, it is thought, will be the President's plan) will not be made known until after the return of the President from his journey to the North.

THE PRESIDENCY .- The Harrisburg Telegraph informs us that a great meeting of the friends of General Scott and Governor Johnston was held in that city on the 6th instant, in the court-house. Major Jacob Sanders presided, assisted by vice presidents and secretaries. Speeches were severally made by General Ayres and John C. Kunkel, esq. Resolutions, nominating General Scott for the Presidency, and approving of the administration of Governor Johnston, were unanimously agreed to.

Public Grounds .- After a struggle in Philadelphia, the councils have determined that they cannot give away Penn Square for a railroad depot-a wise determination. Even here, in Washington, it will soon be found that too much space has not been left. The extension of the Capitol will make the fact very apparent in that section of the city.

Mr. KENNEDY, of the census office, we now learn, is not to go to England for the purpose of attending the World's Fair, but to learn there, as many distinguished diplomatic and other visiters have done here, all that can be learned of the mode of taking the census, digesting and arranging its information, &c.

Gen. JESUP, whose health is somewhat impaired, will leave Washington this evening on a visit to Kentucky, where he contemplates passing some time in the "recruiting" service.

General Scorr arrived at his home in this city on Saturday last.

THE WASHINGTON LIGHT INFANTRY .- This old and favorite Corps have determined to make a fatigue-dress parade one night this or next week, and expect to parade in the neighborhood of fifty men, rank and file; besides, they will be accompanied by their fine band, which has so improved in numbers and talent that our citizens will be delighted to hear them. These parades are only preparatory to an intended visit in September to Baltimore, Philadelphia, and New York.

THE MUSIC .- The performances of the Marine Band are to commence at the Capital Grounds on Wednesday next. The order is, "to perform until further orders at the grounds adjoining the President's House every Saturday afternoon, and at the Capitol grounds every Wednesday afternoon."

NATIONAL HALL .- There is no mistake about it. The theatre is somewhat improved in some things. There is no bar within or about it, nor within a stone's throw of it-hardly. The gods have no place under its canopy. These are important improvements.

On Saturday night last the Lady of Lyons was played to perfection by Miss Bennett; and Mr. Taylor did full justice to the character of her aspiring lover. Mr. Ryan essayed the double-breasted task of personating both Glavis and Beauseant, and was two tolerable kind of Frenchmen, barring a wee bit of a brogue that would not leave him, and that would not pass for even a clever patois. Some of the other actors were passable, and so we will pass them; but the generality were far beneath criticism. The dancing between the pieces was very flesh-colored. The afterpiece was said to be entitled in the play-books "The Secret," and so the less we say about it the better. Mrs. Cappell and her see at school somewhere else) did very well; and so did Mr. Pemberton.

> Mr. Pettibons and the ice business are sure that ice can be preserved for use in such a season. Yet here we have it, frozen in purity half a thousand miles distant several months ago!

Mr. VENABLE (son of the great daguerreotypist) came near making a bad picture a while after noon to-day. While riding in his little carriage, his horse took fright and bounded down D street at a terrible speed. In passing the office of the Intelligencer he smashed the boxes placed around the shade trees to keep off the mischievous goats and wholesome sunshine. On reaching the door of his stable he went straight in with the shafts, leaving the carriage and driver at the door in a somewhat agitated plight.

ALEXANDRIA, VA. - The signs of reviving prosperity in our good old town must gladden the hearts of all its citizens, and especially of its older inhabitants, who have stood by long years—many of them of gloom and de-pression—but who have held out to the end pression—but who have held out to the end with hope and confidence. GENTLEMEN: In your paper of the 10th instant I observe a communication under the above caption, and over the comprehensive signature of "The Masses," in which the author seems to entertain the opinion that the grounds of reception. A salute of one hundred guns at the south front of the President's House should be thrown open to the public at all hours of the day; and he introduces "those at the vest end" as particularly anxious for this thing. ately, paying a fine compliment to his cabine live at the "west end," or, rather, in the First Ward; and no person would enjoy, as a uxury, more than I, during the approaching not days, the privilege of a promenade, or repose, upon the delightful green, amid the beautiful flowers, and in the shade of the magnificent trees that adorn those grounds. But my selfishness will not prompt me to forego propriety, or disregard public interest.

Our President requires no body-guard in martial array; no sentinels stationed at the avenues leading to his mansion, in order to protect the safety of his person. It is and ever should be our pride that he has a safer protection in the hearts of the people. While his person is thus shielded from assault, I would say, let his mind be equally free from needless annoyance. The public interest requires this. If, when wearied with the cares of his office, and perplexed by the conflicting interests and opinions pressed upon his attention, he desires recreation in the open air, combined with retirement for reflection, or if his family desire to inhale the pure breezes of heaven, in the name of mercy let them have one spot where they can enjoy these unannoyed by the stares of the curious or intrusions of the impertinent.

Everybody, at all accustomed to head-work, knows full well the importance of bodily exercise and reflection combined in such cases. You and I, Messrs. Editors, can enjoy these, even n throngs. It is not so with the Executive of a nation as great as ours. Everybody knows who is President, and most people are curious to see how he looks, how he walks, how he bears his honors, to hear the sound of his voice and feel the texture of his hand. We now have the free use of all the other grounds about the public buildings, and the principal rooms of the Executive Mansion duing all hours of the day, and frequently a good share of the night. The enclosure in question is thrown open at certain hours of every day, except Sunday, and, during the warm season one evening of each week, on which latter occasion the scene is enlivened by a concert, gratui tously given by the Marine Band, of music Ought not this to suffice? The same principle that would demand more would claim their freedom at night and on Sundays; and the con tinuance of these "stealthy movements" would require the use for the public of the kitchen ind, in the end, the sleeping apartments provided at the national expense. The President is always accessible (during proper hours) to those who wish to see him on siness, except when in consultation with his Cabinet, or otherwise specially engaged; and he sets apart certain hours every day, except Sun-day, for receiving calls of courtesy and curiosity. Yet this does not come up to the peculiar no-tions entertained by some persons, who, it would seem by their talk, would not be satisfied with any thing short of his taking a stand in some convenient place—say in the East Room, or portico—and entertaining everybody who might call, to their full content, regardless of time or other duties.

ONE OF THE MASSES.

A BEER CASE .- A case of considerable importance to beer-drinkers was tried to-day before 'Squire Donn. It was rather a fishy case, the contestants being two enormous Schad, Messrs. Christopher and John. The parties and witnesses being all Germans, the worthy 'Squire called in the services of Mr. Jacob Kaible, who acted as interpreter. The facts of the case pretty little daughter (whom we could wish to were, that Christopher warranted John for a bill of fifteen dollars and seventy-seven cents, and John warranted Christopher for thirty-The house was thin, the music so-so, and the eight dollars and twelve cents, the two bills embracing several casks and an innumerable quantity of bottles of "Ledger Beer." The great conclusion we must all come to is, that these great fish are not only found in fresh water, but frequently in another element.

A MYSTERY .- It is reported that a white woman was knocked down and severely maltreated to prosper in this weather. What a blessing in the First Ward, on Saturday night. Word was conveyed to the watch-house, but when the police went up they could find no parties nor ascertain any names. The negro man who gave the information conducted the officers to the spot where the deed was perpetrated, and blood was found upon the earth around it.
